Mr Lowe, who sits as an Independent MP in the Commons, announced his intentions for a new party - Restore Britain - last Friday.

Taking to X, he took a swipe at Mr Farage and Reform UK for including "failed ministers... tainted by failures of the past."

Restore Britain was initially set up as a "political movement" by Mr Lowe after his fractious exit from Reform UK. It is now expected to act as an umbrella political party, with locally based political parties as its partners.

Responding to Mr Farage, Rupert Lowe told the Express: "Farage finally admits why he kicked me out of Reform - because I wanted to deport foreign rapists and their accomplices. If that's the case, why did he then try to send me to prison? The British people now have a genuine political alternative to this circus - Restore Britain."
